NO CHANGE IN THE SITUATION

Franco-British Attacks Along the Western Front Fail to Produce Results, While Germans Make No
Gains Against the Russian Forces.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The situation on the eastern front is still regarded in London as of the greatest immediate importance, notwithstanding the new offensive in the West. To transfer the center of gravity of the war to the western front is in the task now before the French and British.

The mounting attitude of Bulgaria doubtless is having a marked bearing on the activity of the Allies in France and Belgium for increasing pressure on the German line which would exert a decided influence on plans of the Australians and Germans to concentrate a heavy force on the Serbian frontier, should they commit themselves to a fresh campaign in the Balkans with the assistance of Bulgaria. That nation now occupies the Pashova, Secovlje, Draga and Krusevac yesterday, the position the Turks held during those weeks of uncertainty before they cast their lot openly with the Central powers.

Some sections of the British press are urging Greece and the Allies to strike quickly this instant, it is determined that diplomacy is no longer able to avert a crisis.

"To await until Bulgaria actually moves," says the Manchester Guardian "is to surrender the strategic initiative to her."

Special dispatches from Petrograd all speak of the improvement of the Russian positions, although there has been no noteworthy change on the eastern front for some days.

With the exception of some ground lost, the British are clinging tenaciously to the position wrested from the Germans. The series of engagements on the French front in the last few days has not altered conditions appreciably.

BULGARIAN TROOPS ARE MOVING ON FRONTIERS.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—It is reported from Athens that Bulgarian troops from Sofia are moving in the direction of the Serbian frontier and that other forces are being dispatched toward the Greek border.

It is believed the principal point of concentration will be along the upper Struma river, southwest of Sofia, near the Serbian border.

ONLY 60,000 GERMANS IN THIRTY-SEVEN SERBIA

PARIS, Oct. 2.—Reports originating in various places that an immense number of Germans and Austrians have concentrated on the Serbian front appear to have been greatly exaggerated in the light of advice received here.

The reports gave the size of the Teutonic army as 200,000 to 300,000 men who it was represented were ready to hack a way to Constantinople. It is now known that only about 60,000 men are threatening Serbia.

New Arabic Note.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—A note from the German ambassador, delivered to Secretary Lansing today, is from the German government concerning the Arabic case, which it is understood, afford a negotiable basis for the question.

NEED DREADNAUTS

Submarines Not the Real Naval Necessity.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The American naval policy for the coming year, tentative plan for which was recognized by the British, is to continue the war and make provisions for the adoption of such means of defense as activity will be very broadly affected by the British admiral's developments of successful means for combating the submarine peril.

Confidential report to the United States government disclosing that the destruction of from 50 to 70 German submarines had been effected by the use of nets, submarine telephones, by new types of mines and covering the submarine area with a fleet of thousands of high speed motor boats armed with guns are good, but failed the confidence of an American naval expert that means would be found to successfully combat undersea warfare.

Likewise these reports have reaffirmed the faith of American experts in the all big gun ship—the dreadnaught—as the effective fighting force of the navy.

The immediate department of this newest lesson drawn from the European war probably will be provision in the new naval bill for continued addition to the dreadnaught fleet, instead of building submarines on such an extensive scale.

BIG STEEL MERGER MAY FOLLOW SALE OF MIDVALE PLANT

Financial Circles Expect Organization of Hugo Concern.

MANY INTERESTS ARE MENTIONED

Plants Now Working on War Orders
Prominently Mentioned as Likely
Units; Big Trade in War Material
Expected to Last After War Ends.

Out of the many rumors of steel mergers including a combination of Bethlehem, Cambria, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Midvale comes the positive announcement that the latter plant has passed into the hands of a syndicate of New York capitalists headed by William E. Corry, who will return to the steel business with R. C. Corry, founder of McKeever tube mills, and Percy Rockefeller, son of William Rockefeller and nephew of John D.

The acquisition of the Midvale Steel Company is said to be a preliminary step toward one of the largest independent steel concerns in the country. The purchase price of the property is understood to have been $10,000,000.

Coincident with the sale of the Midvale dispatches from Philadelphia and rumors in the financial district said that the Cambria Steel Company was changing hands and was expected to be merged with the Midvale. William H. Donnan, president of the Cambria said he does not believe in published reports which declared $25,000,000 would be paid for control, but not negotiated. He would not make any further comment.

Owing to the enormous demand for munitions by the belligerents and a general recognition in the financial district that the United States will have to enlarge its military and naval defenses bankers and heads of large corporations in Wall street have been predicting that the steel companies of this country would be totally inadequate for the fulfillment of the demands that would be made for munitions.

The huge profits being made by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, the Crucible Steel Company of America, the Canadian Car & Foundry and other companies which are making munitions for the allies were said to amply reflect the possibilities for another huge steel combination.

The Driggs-Suburbia Ordnance Company, the Baldwin Locomotive Works, the Cambria Steel, the Lackawanna Steel, Pennsylvania Steel Company, Youngstown Steel & Tube Company, Taylor-Wharton Iron & Steel Company, Pickands-Mather Company and the J. G. Brill Company are among the leaders of the new industrial market of which the Midvale Steel Company is looked upon as the nucleus, according to financial America.

Interwoven interests of most of these companies are particularly well represented on the boards recently elected to the Driggs-Suburbia Ordnance Company following the purchase of that company by interests that announced their intention of changing the entire policy of the company so as to turn it into a war order concern. Further significant is attached to the fact that three of the new directors are former Bethlehem Steelites.

The circumstances surrounding the purchase of the Driggs-Suburbia were similar to those connected with the purchase of the Midvale, each company under its former management being in a position in which it would not handle war orders. It will be recalled that bankers connected with the purchase of the Midvale have stated that the purchase of another company, which had not been engaged on war orders, was involved.

Samuel Mather, president of the Pickands-Mather Company, is a leading director. An inspection of its properties, including large ore fields, is now being made by William H. Donnan, president of the Pennsylvania Steel Company, which owns the Maryland Steel Company, and chairman of the board of the Cambria Steel Company. E. A. Clarke, president of the Lackawanna Steel Company, and James A. Campbell, president of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, Samuel E. Bryson, who it was announced on Monday, has gone on the board of the Midvale, is a director of the Baldwin Locomotive.

Another company the name of which has crept into the talk among steel men regarding the deal is the Roots Engineering & Machine Company, although little definite as to its status in the proceedings is given. The company has received a number of the most important shrapnel and other war orders placed in recent months.

That the Lukens Iron & Steel Company was also looked into with regard to its being made a possible member of the combine has been stated, although control of that company is lodged with a Pennsylvania family which has been understood to be not all anxious to part with its holdings. The Lukens has conducted one of the largest factories of steel plates in the country and has supplied large orders from the Baldwin Locomotive for plates on Russian and other foreign locomotive orders, and boiler and hull plates for vessels building in the Cramp shipyards, and the Maryland Steel Company's Sparrow Point yards.

The Driggs-Suburbia Ordnance Company and the Taylor-Wharton Iron & Steel Company, mentioned as having been working in close harmony on war order business since the Driggs-Suburbia passed under its new control, The Taylor-Wharton now has large orders on its books for steel for the ammunition to be turned out by the Driggs-Suburbia.

The inspection trip was made to the Pickands-Mather Company property by Mowers, Donnan, Clarke and Campbell, will include a general survey of the plant and its operations. It has been stated that the inspection trip should decide definitely whether the ore supplies available through the inclusion of the Pickands-Mather Company interests will be sufficient to enable the new combine to be in an independent position as regards ore. Mr. Campbell, who as president of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, is making the trip in representation of that company, is also director of the Lackawanna.

Other financial interests were recently made that the Cambria Steel Company and the United Steel Company of Canton, were forming a new company to be known as the United Furnace Company, which would build a new $2,000,000 blast furnace, with coke and by-product ovens at Canton, Ohio.

TO YOUR CHILD

That's a question that should occur instantly to every parent when school reports tell of inattention or backwardness.

It is physically impossible for any child to make proper progress in school without perfect vision. Current official investigation in hundreds of schools has shown that more than 70 per cent of the so-called "backward" or "mentally deficient" children are actually sufferers from defective vision. A big majority of such children show immediate improvement after being fitted with correct glasses.

Heat is the soul of a house!

Quick-coming Winter is to be a dread or a delight—depends upon whether you "put-it-off-again" or adopt ideal heating. Old-fashioned heating causes more worry and arguing than any single factor of the home. Why therefore vex through another seven months of weak and wasteful old-time heating? Why be at the mercy of the weather, with shut-off rooms, drafty floors, frigid halls and bays? A house is changed into a home, a soul is put into the dwelling by the flood of mellow warmth guaranteed to you only by the use of have invariably proved more economical than fuel-bills one half, besides the far greater ease in operation, absence of repair bills, vastly greater household cleanliness and avoidance of fire risks.

That is why IDEAL-AMERICAN outfits are an investment, not an expense. You must know they bring 10 to 15% higher rental, or property sells quicker at price to fully cover cost.

It should be understood that the name IDEAL applies to a group of Boilers—changed in form to suit exactly the perfect burning of different kinds and grades of hard and soft coal, (screenings, pea, buckwheat, etc.) coke, lignite, wood, oil, gas, etc. Hence it is not to our interest to urge the sale of an "all around" or "straddle" Boiler which may or may not do the work, but rather to assist the building owner to select the type and size of IDEAL Boiler which will give him complete satisfaction and be best adapted to burn the fuel most cheaply available in his locality. And to burn the least amount of it, and with least care-taking!

Don't this Fall set up again the old stove, but put on an IDEAL-AMERICAN outfit and enjoy winters of solid heating comfort and reliable ventilation, every room and corner "warm as toast," without heated air or dryness to ruin the household furnishings. Call up your dealer and ask for estimate. Ask for book (free): "Ideal Heating." Full of big facts you ought to know. Does not oblige you in the least to buy. SHORT TERM BONDS.

It now appears that the legislators did not go far enough when they framed this referendum clause of the Title Clause City Act requiring all petitions to be signed and verified before the City Clerk in the City Hall.

It should have been provided that the clerk should be required to enlighten the citizen on the nature and character of the petition he was about to subscribe to. It seems that the petitions against the short term street bonds were signed by a number of citizens of Connellsville under a misapprehension of the facts, whether from misrepresentation or otherwise is indubitable.

The short term street bond proposition is short and simple. Under the city law the Council has power to improve such streets as it may see proper in such manner as it may see fit and to collect the entire cost thereof from the abutting property. When the costs are properly apportioned, items are filed against those who do not pay their share promptly.

It is proposed to improve certain streets in Connellsville, to issue short term bonds against the passing items and convert them into cash to pay the cost of the work. The transaction is equivalent to the city lending the money to the property owners to make this improvement, taking a mortgage against their property for its cost and negotiating that mortgage with dealers in investment companies, all without recourse, that is, to say with no come-back upon the city.

We can understand why persons resident on the streets should oppose their improvement. It may not be convenient to meet the expense at this time; but it is hard to conceive why other people should object, since the whole proceeding involves them in no expense, publicly or privately.

HALLOWEEN.

Connellsville will have a gay and festive October beginning with the Kyle Show and ending with the Hallowe'en celebration.

It has been decided to hold the latter on Friday, October 29, in deference to celebrations being held in neighboring towns. This act of courtesy costs nothing, and gains us much outside enthusiasm. Hallowe'en is a movable feast to those who have the power to move it.

The Connellsville celebration will be in the spirit of the Connellsville frenzien, which insures its proper character. It will be backed by the Credit Men's Association which insures its success financially; and it will be participated in by every boy and most of the girls in the city, and that means that everybody will be happy.

It is planned to make this celebration one of the biggest and best Connellsville has ever had, and it must be remembered that Connellsville inaugurated this feature in Western Pennsylvania and has been setting the pace for other towns.

Come early and get in line.

CHANGING THE NAME.

The Business & Professional Men's Credit Association adopted new by-laws, but refused to change its name. "A rose by another name would smell as sweet," it is true, but the present name is unwieldy and fails to express the scope of the association's aims and endeavors.

We have had in the past improvements which didn't even improve the manners of the members; Boards of Trade trading in trifles; Chambers of Commerce with more money than sense; and so on. Every-thing is in the action and nothing in the name, to be sure, but these names have never appealed to the simple directness of business methods.

The Business & Professional Men's Credit Association is certainly no improvement. The Commercial Club would be much better. It is simpler and more direct, yet it is broadly comprehensive covering every possible legitimate object of the association.

THE 50% PLUM LAW.

The Uniontown Standard questions the constitutionality of the 50% plus primary election clause.

We have already pointed out that it is possible for a single candidate for Council at the November election to receive more votes than the single candidate who received more than 50% of the primary vote and whose name will have preferred position on the ballot. This raises the question whether the majority shall rule at the election over the minority who expressed at the primary. This point seems to be well taken.

The primary election law has progressed until it has become something of an absurdity.

The West Penn continues to make electric power contracts with the coke plants of the Connellsville region in spite of the waste heat and gas, the cheap coal and the coke breeze which is almost wholly waste. The fact speaks volumes for the efficiency and economy of West Penn power, which like most things in the coke region, radiates from Connellsville.

It is to be hoped that the Telephone conference at Uniontown this week will result in increased efficiency.

The business men of Connellsville want the to fare some extended to Pennsville. The distance is no greater than to Dunbar. The demand is equitable.

The Business & Professional Men's Credit Association preserved their self-respect by not moving into small, mean and altogether undesirable buildings.

Iowa

BY GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

The University of Iowa is a set of Siwash twins engaged in a violent endeavor to devour each other.

Siwash, the University, is located at Iowa City and has 5,000 students, 1,000 yearly.

Siwash is one of the greatest agricultural schools in the world and a vast campus, equipped with a technical school, cafeteria, campgrounds and the comforts of modern conveniences.

Whether school, however, is contentious.

It is the constant desire of Ames to get all of Iowa City's appropriations away from it and Iowa City graduates will not let legislators be nominated if they can help it.

Siwash is the only school to have traces of enmity to the older school.

So Iowa maintains duplicate colleges, thrashed campus and atmosphere which keep her so poor that she hasn't got her upward of $2,000,000 to keep both schools going.

If Iowa's two colleges were united

THROW OUT ALL THE RUNTY LITTLE EARS SUCH AS THIS ONE FOR INSTANCE

Ames has produced Professor Holden, who taught Iowa farmers how to test their corn.

They would have 7,000 students and would look down with scorn on Michigan and Indiana. Iowa City has produced many famous men, including a football team which stood the rest of the middle West teams on their hands and were at the chalk off the goal line of Michigan and Chicago. Ames taught Iowa farmers how to test their corn and made that state the greatest corn state in the union.

Neither college has turned out very many skilled scientists of the agricultural type.

Iowa educates its students liberally at these schools, but it does not stop there. It educates its pigs, cows, milch, horses, mutton, chickens, turkeys, hens and turkeys.

It cost Iowa a great deal of money to run her universities, but she gets it all back with 500 per cent profit each fall and does not murmur or repine.

THE COLONIAL

"THE CLUE."—The "Clue," which is the current attraction at the Colonial today, is a superb picture of the thrilling detective masterpiece featuring Blanche Sweet, the supreme photoplay favorite. In this production Miss Sweet plays the role of a wealthy American girl and it is one of the noblest characters she has ever been called upon to impersonate and one of the most pieces of work she has done.

The "Colonial American Travel Festival" will be shown in addition to this program. These have proven very popular with Colonial patrons. Tuesday, Charlotte Walker in "Kindling" is the attraction.

"THE ONLY GIRL."

A play that can run an entire season in New York or elsewhere in these days of prodigious theatrical productions, must necessarily be a stage offering of excellent merit, otherwise it would not survive a run of any particular length. "The Only Girl," which by the way is one of the daintiest of musical plays, which has been brought to the attention of the public for a long time, remained on view at the Lyric Theatre in New York almost all of last season, and this in spite of the fact that theatricals largely on account of the European war which brought about a general depression in business on this side of the Atlantic, stood out as one of the real meritorious offerings in that city. The plays are real, and the world in no way like music, and those who do not are probably unfortunate, at least. It is supposed there is something radically wrong in their make-up, and all lovers of music are always charmed with that which emanates from the fertile mind of Victor Herbert, who is the joint author with Harry Blossom in "The Only Girl," the former writing the music and the latter the libretto. "The Only Girl" will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, Wednesday, October 6. The advance sale opens at Huston's drug store Monday morning at 9 A. M.

SOISSON THEATRE.

"THE MASTER HAND."—The famous actor, Nat Goodwin, comes to the Soisson Theatre today in the five reel metropolitan success, "The Master Hand." It is Mr. Goodwin's first appearance this season and he will be welcomed by his many admirers. The thrilling new wild animal comedy, "Joe Martin Turns 'Em Loose," is a roaring, tearing, screaming knockout. It is positively the wildest animal moving picture ever exhibited. Adele Lane and Edward S. Loman are featured in the big U drama, "In the Heart of the Hills." It tells a vital story of a false watchman of a private lake and how the police are puffed up. At the Beach Incognito, the latter comedy that is entertaining and funny. Monday, the favorite Charles Chaplin appears in the roaring comedy, "Twenty Minutes of Love." Tuesday, the first feature of the Broadway Universal Pictures, Jane Cowl in "The Garden of Lies" will be presented. It is in five reels.

"THE MASTER HAND."—World Film Corporation releases the five part photoplay, "The Master Hand," based on Carroll Fleming's drama of the same name. Nat "O. Goodwin, the famous actor, appears in the film at the Soisson today.

"Nat" is welcome in pictures. As an actor he is versatile; his name and personality are familiar to millions. Any picture in which he appears is assured, in advance, of special attention.

"The Master Hand" is a strong drama, but it is one with a trio of villains just about as villainous as villain can be. There are: (1) a husband who marries a rich widow, wants her money, and stops at nothing short of slow murder to gain his ends; (2) a female accomplice, a lady doctor who drags the unsuspecting woman and plans to marry hubby when the wife dies; (3) a sneaky doctor who keeps a private sanctum and conspires with hubby and the lady doctor to have the wife committed to his sanitarium.

LYMAN HOWE'S TRAVEL FESTIVAL.—Obviously some theatrical attractions come here occasionally that some people can afford to miss, once in a while there is something that everybody can afford to miss—but an attraction that no one can afford to miss is Lyman H. Howe's Travel, which comes to the Soisson Theatre, matinee and night, Saturday, October 9.

"No! No!" she had exclaimed, gently frightened and in a voice full of quick dissent. "I mustn't do it. Milt; you mustn't. If you do, I won't see you."

"Well settle that when I git that. I just 'lowed I'd tell ye," paraded the boy stubbornly. "I reckon I mustn't talk ter ye now—'m pledged' and without another word he shook up the reins on his horse's neck and rode away.

So tonight, while the moon was weaving its spell over several hearts, the son of the McBrillar leader was riding with a set face over into the heart of the Hovey country, openly to visit the daughter of Fletch McNash.

Jeb was sitting before the fire with a pipe between his teeth and Dawn plunked on a banjo—not the old folksore tune that had once been her repertoire, but a newer and sweeter thing that she had learned from Juanita Holiland.

Then, as a confident voice sang out from the darkness, "I'm Milt McBrillar an' I'm a-comin' in," the banjo fell from the girl's hands and her fingers clutched in pain at her breast.

She saw her brother rise from his chair and heard his voice demand truculently: "What ther' hell does you want hyar?"

Though Anse Hovey strode up the steep trail to the crest that night with long, elastic strides, seeking to burn up the restlessness which obsessed him, he found himself at the top with no wish to sleep and no patience with the idea of confining his thoughts between walls.

Anse Hovey felt that something was missing from his life; something of the barbarian order had become suddenly hateful to him. Into the gray, eyes crept a suffering, and the brows came together in helpless perplexity.

Juanita was a woman of an exotic rare who chose to think that life comes to perfection only under glass. He was a leader of a brier-tangled and shaggy clan—men who were akin to the eagles. No menace or threat of death had ever made him deviate from his loyalty to that people. But now a foreign woman had come and he was comparing himself with the well-dressed, soft-voiced man who was her visitor and feeling himself a creature of uncouthness.

He found himself wishing that he, too, was smoother. Then he flung the thought from him with bitter self-contempt, and a low oath broke from his lips. Was he growing ashamed of his life? Was he wishing that his eagle's talons might be manacled and his plumes combed?

"If yo've done come down to that, Anse Hovey," he said aloud, "it's about time yo kill yourself."

No, he protested to his soul, he had disliked Roger Malcolm because Roger Malcolm had spoken of a project of plunder and stood for his enemies of the future; but his soul answered that he thought little of that, and that it was because of the obvious understanding between this man and Juanita Holiland that a new hatred had been born in his heart.

At the scant welcome of his greeting young Milt McBrillar stiffened a little from head to foot, though he had not anticipated any great degree of cordiality.

He climbed the stile and walked across the moonlit patch of trampled clay to where the girl stood leaning, weak-kneed with fright, against the lighted frame of the door.

"Job," he said slowly to the boy, who had stepped down into the yard, "how air yo?" Then, turning to Dawn, with his hat in his hand, he greeted her gravely.

But the son of the murdered man stood still and rigid and repeated in a hard voice: "What ther' hell does you want hyar?"

"I come over hyar ter see Dawn," was the calm response, and then, as the girl convulsively moltened her dry lips with her tongue, she saw her brother's hand sweep under his coat and come out gripping a heavy revolver.

Jeb had never gone armed before that night when Fletch fell. Now he was never unarmed.

"Don't, Job!" she screamed in a transport of alarm, as she braced herself and summoned strength to seize the hand that held the weapon.

Job shook his head roughly, off and wheeled again to face the boy, with the precaution of a side-wise leap. He had expected that the other boy would use that man's interference to draw his own weapon, but the young McBrillar was standing in the same attitude, holding his hat in one hand while he reassured the girl.

"Don't frst, Dawn; that hain't nothin' ter worry about," he said; then, facing the brother, he went on in a voice of cold and almost scornful composure.

"That hain't ther' first time yo've seed me across the sights of a gun, is it, Jeb?"

"What does ye mean?" The other boy's face went brick-red and he lowered his muzzle with a sense of sudden shame.

"Oh, I heared about how old Bob McGregor told ye a paen of it's about me, an' how ye come across the ridge one day I reckon I kin guess the rest."

"Well, what of hit?" Jeb stood with his pistol now hanging at his side, but in his eyes still glowed the fire of hatred.

"Just this," young McBrillar went on: "I ain't got no gun on me, I ain't even got a jackknife. I 'lowed that ye might be right smart incensed at my comin' hyar an' I come without no weapon on purpose. Ef ye halst' scared of me when I'm unarmed, I reckon yo kin put your own gun bac' in the holster."

Jeb McBrillar slowly followed the suggestion, and then coming forward, until the two boys stood eye to eye, he said in deliberate accents: "I reckon ye don't 'low I'm scared of ye."

"I reckon not." Young Milt's tone was almost cheerful. "I reckon ye are about as much scared of me as I am of you—an' that ain't none."

"What does ye want hyar?" persisted Jeb.

"I wants first to tell ye—an' I hain't never lied ter no feller yit—that I don't know nothin' more about what I kill Fletch that you does. If I did, no help me God Almighty, I'd tell ye: I hain't tryin' ter shield no murderer."

There was a ring of sincerity in the lad's voice that carried weight even into the bitter skepticism of Jeb's heart—a skepticism which had refused to believe that honor or truth dwelt east of the ridge.

Roger Malcolm had gone back, and he had not, after all, gone back with a conqueror's triumph. He was now discussing in directors' meetings plans looking a titanic grouping of interests which were to focus on these hills and later to bring developments.

The girl school was gradually making itself felt, and each day saw small classes at the dusk and blackboard—small classes that were growing larger.

Now that Milt had laid the groundwork of his plans, he was making the field follow by a scrum of general beneficence. His word had gone out along the crooks and branches and into the remote coves of his territory that it "wouldn't hurt none none ter give their children a little 'rarin'."

In response to that hint they trooped in from the east, wherever the roads could be traveled. Among those who "hitched an' lighted" at the fence, were not only parents who brought their children, but those who came impelled not to be able to sustain the scorn of those younger eyes. So, while the lad, who had gone back to college in Lexington, combed his books, his father sat before the blaze of his hearth, his pipe tight clamped between his teeth, his heart festering in his breast, and his mind dangerously active.

The beginnings of all that things which he deplored, and meant to punish, went back to the establishment of a school with "fotched on" teacher, bad Dawn McNeal, not come there, his boy's feet would not have gone wandering westward over the ridge, straying out of partisan paths. The slimness of her body, the lure of her violet eyes, and the dusky meshes of her dark hair had led his son to guard the roof that sheltered her against the hand of arson the father had hired.

"Don't be afraid of me. I'll promise not to make love to you."

"I'm obliged," he said slowly. "That ain't what I'm scared of; I'm afraid ye could hardly stop me from makin' love to you."

"There's never a day I'm not in danger," he replied casually. "I've got pretty well used to it."

"But some day," she broke out, "they'll get you."

"Ife shrugged his shoulders. "Maybo," he said.

As Juanita's influence grew with Bad Anse Hovey, so it was growing at the school. She had to turn away pupils who had come across the mountains on wearisome journeys because as yet she had only limited room and no teacher save herself and Dawn to care for the youngest.

At the front of the hall which led into the main school building was a rack with notches for rifles and pogs for pistols. She told all who entered that who made only one stipulation, and that was that whoever crossed the threshold must leave his armament at the door.

At first some men turned away again, taking their children with them, but at time went on they grudgingly acquiesced, and at last, with a sense of great victory, she persuaded three shaggy fathers, who were coming regularly with their children, to "do back home unarmed."

Disarmament was her idea for the great solution, and when Bad Anse came over—and he came every night now—he led him with almost directly that a warm color suddenly flooded her cheeks, then he went on with naked honesty and an unconfessed bitterness of heart: "When I puts myself in the way of havin' to love one, I'll pick a woman that won't have to be ashamed of me—some mountain woman."

For an instant she stared at him in astonishment, then she exclaimed: "Ashamed of you! I don't think any woman would be ashamed of you, Mr. Hovey," but, recognizing that her voice had been overzealous, she laughed, and once more her eyes danced with gay mischief.

"Don't be afraid of me. I'll promise not to make love to you."

"I'm obliged," he said slowly. "That ain't what I'm scared of; I'm afraid ye could hardly stop me from makin' love to you."

COKE OPERATORS ARE NOT SELLING THEIR COAL NOW

Improved Demand Has Removed the Present Necessity.

FREIGHT RATES AGAINST THEM

Connellsville Region Producers May Go After By-Product Business in a Determined Way If Another Stamp Hits Merchant Coke Market.

Merchant operators of the Connellsville region protest vigorously as to the movement reported in a trade paper to effect that they propose to get a friendly rate on the coal and coke business, especially to by-product plants. The fact is that coke is in greater demand now for the moment, enabled them to lay aside any such proposition. Of course, with coke at $1.50, it would be better for some of the coke operators to sell their raw coal at $1, but with coal at that figure, the freight differential against the Connellsville region practically bars the coal from the market. The coal is not yet in a position to affect any way to have the Connellsville region not take the Pittsburgh rate west, in which event a wider market would be afforded.

Discussing the coal situation in the Pittsburgh district, and the relation of the Connellsville operators thereto, the American Metal Market says:

"There is beginning to be considerable negotiation for coal for by-product uses, and the demand for market coal somewhat strengthens in tone in consequence. Prices, however, are still very low. While there are fewer sellers than formerly at minimum prices, it seems still possible to do Pittsburgh district minimum at $1.00 to $1.05 for prompt coal and at $1.10 to $1.15 for contracts to April 1st. As the wage scale comes up for bi-monthly settlement, for that date there is no disposition to contract beyond the stated dates. One should be long term, however. One has to vary according to the mining rates.

"It is possible that some of the Connellsville coke interests may go in more for shipping coal. Only a very few are now equipped with the necessary railroad tipples, but a contract for even a short period of years could cover the cost of installing a tipple. It now seems certain that eventually a great deal of the remaining Connellsville working coal is going to be shipped to by-product ovens.

No more Connellsville region coal is going into the by-product market than has always gone there, according to merchant operators. Several concerns are shipping some coal, and have been for some months past. One concern of the Lower Connellsville region does a large coal business in addition to its cooking activities, shipping considerable tonnage for the lake trade, but all of that company's coal is now intended to be shipped now that it is not in. Other operators make the same statement.

The H. C. Frick Coke Company regularly ships a large tonnage of Lower Connellsville coal to the by-product ovens of the United States Steel Corporation at Gary and Joliet, where the mix is said to be 60% Pennsylvania, 30% Illinois or Indiana and 10% Connellsville. The Republic Iron & Steel Company has shut down its ovens at Martin and is shipping coal from the plant and is shipping coal to its by-product plant recently established at Youngstown, O. The entire product of the new Republic mine Blawood, near Blawood, goes to this point for the same purpose. The Blawood operation has no ovens. It was recently opened up. The coal here in the tops of the hills and was in cooking circles thought to be high in sulphur. It has fooled everybody by proving itself to be especially low in sulphur and of corresponding excellence as a cooking coal.

Of course the operators are successful in having their rates on coal reduced. It is probable that they will pay more serious attention to the market, especially where coal is used for by-product purposes. The Greenberg and Upper Connellsville regions ship considerable coal, and by-product plants get fuel from other fields, but with anything near even terms on freight charges, Connellsville region coal would have little difficulty winning the market.

THE EUROPEAN WAR IN BIBLICAL PROPHECY

Undreamed of passions have burst forth, devouring the lands that patient hands have beautified and made fertile, and centuries have stocked with art treasures. To the entire world the hand of God has a complete surprise in store, their book (600 pages—cloth) telling that just such conditions would exist, only to be followed by the still greater devastation of antis. The first edition came from the press in 1857.

Of vast interest and importance to the public is the book, "The Prophecy of the European War in Biblical Prophecy," which is now in its second edition. It is a complete history of the war, with maps and illustrations, and is a valuable addition to any library.
